Abstract:

Collection of the Honors Program of Indiana University South Bend. Dates range from 1965 to 2007. The Honors Program at Indiana University South Bend offers highly motivated and achieving students an opportunity for a specialized college experience that includes attending small Honors classes that are capped at 15 students (and often contain fewer); experiencing a high degree of personal attention in discussion-based classes. Honors students design a senior project that is completed under the mentorship of a small group of experienced faculty members. In addition, Honors students may receive financial support throughout their tenure as undergraduates at IU South Bend in the form of Honors scholarships.

Scope and Content Note:

Material is arranged chronologically. Materials include programs, invitations, honors theses of students in the program, presentation materials, promotional materials for the program, and program newsletters. A good overview of the Honors Program at the Indiana University South Bend, which rewards highly achieving students. Note: There are some years that have no Honors Program materials, as is noted in the listing. In addition, some materials bear no date, and are noted as such with "n.d."

Note – See Also: The Chancellor Lester Wolfson Collection of the Indiana University South Bend Archives also contains more related materials about the Honors Program on the campus, primarily correspondence.
